Page 1: Half-Title

Pages 1

Illustration Note

Quiet opening image fragment: hat brim, stone texture, or moonlit road detail.

Full Spread

Captain Daniel and the Honey Barrel

Prompt seed: Painterly historical realism for a children's Revolutionary War picture book. Young Daniel Cook, visibly teenage and vulnerable rather than heroic, in blue-gray night ton...

Page 2: Copyright

Page 2: Copyright

Pages 2

Illustration Note

Minimal spot art or open space.

Full Spread

Copyright / publication page

Prompt seed: Painterly historical realism for a children's Revolutionary War picture book. Young Daniel Cook, visibly teenage and vulnerable rather than heroic, in blue-gray night ton...

Page 3: Title Page

Page 3: Title Page

Pages 3

Illustration Note

Young Daniel introduced before the conflict fully begins.

Full Spread

Captain Daniel and the Honey Barrel

Prompt seed: Painterly historical realism for a children's Revolutionary War picture book. Young Daniel Cook, visibly teenage and vulnerable rather than heroic, in blue-gray night ton...

Page 4: Silent Lead-In

Pages 4

Illustration Note

Empty road between high stone walls before the story begins.

Full Spread

Silent image

Prompt seed: Painterly historical realism for a children's Revolutionary War picture book. Young Daniel Cook, visibly teenage and vulnerable rather than heroic, in blue-gray night ton...

Spread 1

Spread 1

Pages 5-6

Illustration Note

Use the established Book 1 visual language.

Left Page

The soldiers were still hungry. Winter had been long.

Right Page

Food was hard to find. But the captain had given them an order.

Prompt seed: Painterly historical realism for a children's Revolutionary War picture book. Young Daniel Cook, visibly teenage and vulnerable rather than heroic, in blue-gray night ton...

Spread 2

Pages 7-8

Illustration Note

Night movement toward the Tory property, hunger already established.

Left Page

"Go out and take some Tory's chickens," he said, "or anything you can find."

Right Page

So Daniel Cook and several soldiers went quietly through the dark.

Prompt seed: Painterly historical realism for a children's Revolutionary War picture book. Young Daniel Cook, visibly teenage and vulnerable rather than heroic, in blue-gray night ton...

Spread 3

Spread 3

Pages 9-10

Illustration Note

Use the established Book 1 visual language.

Left Page

They came to the house of a Tory. Inside the house were supplies the soldiers badly needed.

Right Page

But they had to be careful. If the Tory discovered them, everything would be lost.

Prompt seed: Painterly historical realism for a children's Revolutionary War picture book. Young Daniel Cook, visibly teenage and vulnerable rather than heroic, in blue-gray night ton...

Spread 4

Spread 4

Pages 11-12

Illustration Note

Use the established Book 1 visual language.

Left Page

The soldiers moved quickly and quietly. One of them lifted the lid of a small cask.

Right Page

Inside was honey.

Prompt seed: Painterly historical realism for a children's Revolutionary War picture book. Young Daniel Cook, visibly teenage and vulnerable rather than heroic, in blue-gray night ton...

Spread 5

Pages 13-14

Illustration Note

Strong close-up spread, honey hand and sudden panic.

Left Page

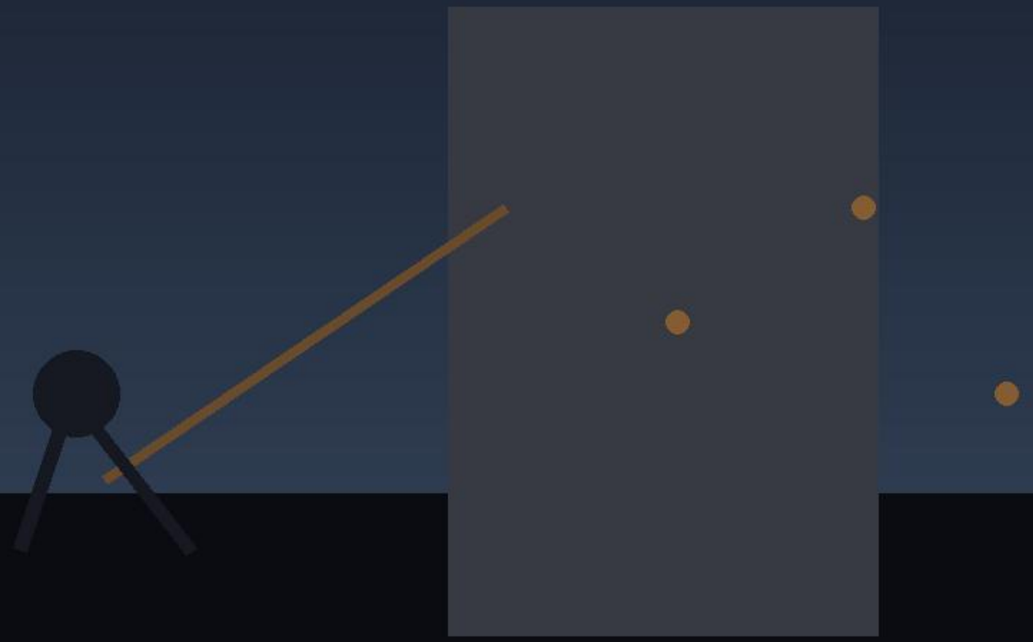
Without thinking, he plunged his hand inside. The honey was thick and sticky.

Right Page

When he pulled his hand back out, it was covered. The soldier quickly slammed the lid down.

Prompt seed: Painterly historical realism for a children's Revolutionary War picture book. Young Daniel Cook, visibly teenage and vulnerable rather than heroic, in blue-gray night ton...

Spread 6



Spread 6

Pages 15-16

Illustration Note

Use the established Book 1 visual language.

Left Page

Just then the Tory appeared.

Right Page

The soldier grabbed his handkerchief and began wiping the honey from his hand.

Prompt seed: Painterly historical realism for a children's Revolutionary War picture book. Young Daniel Cook, visibly teenage and vulnerable rather than heroic, in blue-gray night ton...

Spread 7

Pages 17-18

Illustration Note

Use the established Book 1 visual language.

Left Page

Then he said loudly, "Boys, what in thunder do you keep soap here for?"

Right Page

Daniel answered at once. "We have to keep it there or the soldiers will steal it from us."

Prompt seed: Painterly historical realism for a children's Revolutionary War picture book. Young Daniel Cook, visibly teenage and vulnerable rather than heroic, in blue-gray night ton...

Spread 8

Spread 8

Pages 19-20

Illustration Note

Use the established Book 1 visual language.

Left Page

The Tory looked puzzled. But he seemed satisfied.

Right Page

Then he noticed one of the soldiers.

Prompt seed: Painterly historical realism for a children's Revolutionary War picture book. Young Daniel Cook, visibly teenage and vulnerable rather than heroic, in blue-gray night ton...

Spread 9

Pages 21-22

Illustration Note

Tension redirects to the bee-stung soldier.

Left Page

The man stood with his mouth wide open. His tongue was swollen from the sting of a bee.

Right Page

The Tory pointed at him. "What ails that man?"

Prompt seed: Painterly historical realism for a children's Revolutionary War picture book. Young Daniel Cook, visibly teenage and vulnerable rather than heroic, in blue-gray night ton...

Spread 10

Pages 23-24

Illustration Note

Use the established Book 1 visual language.

Left Page

The captain answered calmly. "He has the toothache."

Right Page

For a long moment the Tory studied them. No one moved. No one spoke.

Prompt seed: Painterly historical realism for a children's Revolutionary War picture book. Young Daniel Cook, visibly teenage and vulnerable rather than heroic, in blue-gray night ton...

Spread 11

Spread 11

Pages 25-26

Illustration Note

Use the established Book 1 visual language.

Left Page

Then the old man nodded and turned away.

Right Page

The soldiers waited until he was gone.

Prompt seed: Painterly historical realism for a children's Revolutionary War picture book. Young Daniel Cook, visibly teenage and vulnerable rather than heroic, in blue-gray night ton...

Spread 12

Pages 27-28

Illustration Note

Use the established Book 1 visual language.

Left Page

Then they looked at one another. And laughed.

Right Page

War was full of danger. Sometimes it was full of hunger.

Prompt seed: Painterly historical realism for a children's Revolutionary War picture book. Young Daniel Cook, visibly teenage and vulnerable rather than heroic, in blue-gray night ton...

Spread 13

Spread 13

Pages 29-30

Illustration Note

Quiet symbolic spread, honey, chest, and relieved soldiers or a simple still-life.

Full Spread

But now and then, a little cleverness--

Prompt seed: Painterly historical realism for a children's Revolutionary War picture book. Young Daniel Cook, visibly teenage and vulnerable rather than heroic, in blue-gray night ton...

Spread 14

Spread 14

Pages 31-32

Illustration Note

Minimal final image, lightness after narrow danger.

Full Spread

could save the day.

Prompt seed: Painterly historical realism for a children's Revolutionary War picture book. Young Daniel Cook, visibly teenage and vulnerable rather than heroic, in blue-gray night ton...